

FASHION WRAP

Eva Hoare

Post Christmas

By the time you read this, all you hungry fashionistas are sure to be hot on the trail of the motherlode of bargains, which come to us every year at this most special time - the day of the Boxing Day sales.

So I say, Girlfriends, Let the Games Begin!

I'll likely be right out there with ya, pushing and shoving to get a look at some righteous shooz, bootz, and all the viva glam stuff that my paycheques before the holidays just didn't support. (Apparently, some of us were supposed to be out buying for others before the 25th....)

But, if you don't spy me trolling the aisles, I thought I'd give you a little list so as to ease your "shopping for me" experience. After all, I could be having a latte...

First of all - I'd like a little number for New Year's Eve - nothing too overdone, of course - maybe just a little sliver of an adorable silver dress that we'll just put under the tree and pretend was there the whole time.

I've taken the liberty of setting it aside for you, so just swipe the card, drop it off; and I'll be as pleased as several champagne punches come NY's Eva.

Next, and only if you're really in the mood - I've just had a hankering for a pair of those UGGs that come from "down under."

I'm not likely to wear them out and about, as I think I feel a bit long in the tooth for that girlfriends, but I'm proposing to use them as slippers.

Again, to make this easier for you - I've taken the liberty of setting aside two tall grey ones (left and ride feet included of course), for you at a little shop downtown. So, really, all you have to do is drop by; swipe your card..You get the picture.....?

Okay, I'm trying not to go overboard, but there's just a little bauble or two at this other place, also downtown - really, just up the road from UGGS-ville.

Ask the nice lady behind the jewelry counter for the little necklace with the sterling silver clasp. It goes so nicely over my black sheath dress.

Of course, I've taken the liberty of placing it aside for you. So, you know the drill...

And, then, and only if you have time; I don't really want to rush you, but just across the street, there's this cute little Dolce & Gabbana chiffon camisole.

You know the animal print one, in the animal print. Yes, that's it. Not there? Oh, that's because I've taken the liberty of having it set aside.. Yes, your name's on it for pick up..That's it, just slide that card through the machine. Thank you, you know this will look just darling at my birthday celebration in March.

That reminds me - remind me to get you to pick up the sexy little peep-toe shooties at that little shoe shop next door; they're a perfect prowling mate for the cami.

Now, of course, honestly, please feel free to pick up anything you'd like for your fine self after finishing my order. .

Far be it from me to hone in too much on your day of desires!

Oh, before I go - do you have The Chronicle Herald's address so you can drop off my gifts? Got it, oh, what a relief.

Thanks girlfriends, did I ever tell you, you're just the best!

Happy New Year!
